

Does a minister hand over to someone from their own region?

Chance is the probability two ministers drawn from that era's coded pool share a region, so it moves with recruitment concentration. Observed sits at chance throughout: the protectorate's 68% is high because recruitment was already that concentrated, not because handovers were regional.