

One broker's colleagues, grouped by when they arrived

Abdelkrim Zbidi has the highest betweenness in the layer. Each spoke is a colleague, placed on the arc for the period they entered government and at a radius set by how long the two overlapped. The two large fans belong to cohorts that never met each other, which is what being a broker means where ties cannot cross time. Fans under ten go unlabelled; the four colleagues from before 1987 are almost certainly composite-roster artefacts of the kind fig. 35 describes.
