

The premiership stops being a capstone

One row per premiership, oldest first. Bourguiba's four prime ministers arrived with 8.5 to 15.2 years of ministerial service behind them. Of the 13 premierships since 2011 the median is 0.6 years: 8 arrived with a year or less, 4 having never held a portfolio at all. Bourguiba himself is a zero in 1956 because there was no prior government to serve in. Béji Caïd Essebsi's bar is cut at the axis: his 45.6 years run from a 1965 appointment. Dates are person-level only: without that filter the last four premierships collapse onto one composite roster date. See the codebook on ``date_basis``.
